

The Olga Lengyel Institute for Holocaust Studies and Human Rights

Drawing on History: Using Graphic Texts in Holocaust and Human Rights Education

Summer Seminar for Middle, High School, and College Educators

July 7th – 13th, 2019

An Interdisciplinary Inquiry on Teaching the Holocaust

Supporting the work of teachers in Holocaust, Social Justice, and Human Rights education.

Join us this summer as we inquire into new ways to address Holocaust Studies, collaborate on effective teaching methods, and take time to enjoy each other's company.

"I tell my story so that they might tell the next generation"

– Sara Atzmon, Holocaust survivor

Seminar Highlights

Each day includes sessions that introduces new perspectives on our theme. We will learn, collaborate, write, and reflect. Most importantly, you will experience concrete ways to bring your learning back to your students. This summer includes:

- The Jewish origins of comics in America
- Exploration of the graphic text as a teaching tool
- Daytrip to the Catawba Indian Nation Reservation in Rock Hill, SC
- Full day experience at Temple Beth El at Shalom Park
- Participate in the Butterfly Project with a Holocaust survivor

This seminar is offered FREE to participants through the generous support of our partners and offers participants:

- 3 Professional Development CEU credits
- Most meals
- Discounted single or double occupancy accommodations at Queens University for out-of-town participants
- Free educational resources presented in seminar sessions

Experienced facilitators Donna Tarney (Charlotte Catholic High School) and Tonya Wertz-Orbaugh (University of North Carolina at Charlotte) lead the seminar.
